Council Awards $43,501 Bid For Water Plant Addition

Triangle Gets Contract; Alter Specifications

One Filter Unit Will Be Built; Shell for Another

The Harrisburg city council yesterday voted to award a contract for a water treatment plant addition to the Triangle Construction Co. of Kankakee on its $43,501 bid on altered specifications.

At the last meeting of the council Nov. 15, bids of three contractors were opened and were tabled when it was found that all three total figures were far above what funds the city had available.

These bids were to construct two filtering units and the shell for a third, to be constructed at a later date. For this project Triangle was low at $61,851, a bid by Robert Callaghan of Freeburg, Ill., was $63,202, and Powell and Beltz of Centralia was $65,951.50.

Revised Proposal

Under the revised specifications, one filter unit and the shell for another were included. This unit will increase the filtering capacity of the Harrisburg plant by more than 335,000 gallons per day.

George L. Sodemann of Sodemann and Associates, consulting engineers of Urbana who are handling the engineering details for the project, said he had discussed the changes with the state department of public health and that approval of the revised proposal had been received.

He said that the $43,501 was a good bid, that the price for the concrete work was unusually low. "You'll have a plant with a setting capacity of 1,600,000 gallons per day," he said. "Your mixing facilities will not be as good but your raw water here is of such quality that you will be able to get along all right."

At present the city has three filter units at the treatment plant, all of 335,000 gallons per day capacity. However, during the hot dry weather of the summer, around 1,250,000 gallons are being filtered through these three units.

Plans are to start next winter, after the new addition is completed, and overhaul each of the present units one at a time.

The vote on accepting the Triangle bid with the alterations was unanimous with all members of the council voting on the proposal and Sodemann said he would have the contracts ready for signing in a few days.

A representative of the Triangle company who was present at the meeting told Amos Doom, superintendent of the city water and sewer department, that he expected to get construction under way the first of the year.

In another action yesterday the city vacated Elm street from Route 45 to the Sahara machine shop property, which is not used as a street. The area will go to Charles W. Gates, who owns the Texaco service station property on one side, and Tison and Hall, who are situated on the other side of Elm street. Gates is to pay $250 to the city for the area he will receive.

Cinders Hard to Get

Sneed Jordan, superintendent of streets and alleys, told the council of the hardships his department was having in getting cinders to fill up bad spots in the city's cinder streets. He said that since the power plant at Muddy had ceased operations, it was almost impossible to get cinders. He has been picking up some from the Ford Brick and Tile Co., Pankey's bakery and some other places but does not get near enough, he stated.

The council then discussed getting rock some place to fill up the holes and this possibility was to be looked into.

The council tabled minutes of the Harrisburg water and sewer board which agreed to ten per cent pay hikes for employees of the water and sewer departments.

BERLIN "STOCKED UP"—The fuel in West Berlin's "emergency pantry" is coal—this is one of the huge piles reserved in the event that Soviet blockade threats come true. Contemplating a traffic blockade by the Reds, West Berlin has stored supplies to feed and warm the area of 2,000,000 inhabitants for a period of six months or longer. East German Reds applied pressure to the West by refusing to renew yearly permits to West Berlin's canal barges which bring supplies through Communist territory. (NEA Telephoto)

Santa to Greet Kids Thursday Night

Tomorrow night's the night, kids! The jolly old gentleman, Santa Claus himself, will be on the square to greet all of you, with a little gift for everyone.

He's due to arrive at the airport at 6:00, where the Jaycees will have landing facilities arranged, and he'll be brought to the square in the city fire truck, to the south porch of the court house, where he'll certainly be glad to see you and talk to you!

Don't forget... that's tomorrow night (Thursday), and Santa will be in Harrisburg to find out what you want for Christmas. Tell mom and dad you want to be sure and see him tomorrow night!

Benson Considers Restoring 90 Per Cent Supports to Basic Crops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson said today there is a possibility the administration will restore 90 per cent price supports on "top quality" products only.

Benson emphasized, in reply to a United Press questionnaire, that he is not abandoning the administration's flexible support program which has been under heavy fire from Democrats.

But he said "we are exploring" a limited 90 per cent support plan "especially as it concerns next year's wheat crop." He does not regard this as a "compromise" with high-support advocates.

"I think that we must recognize and will recognize differentials for quality," he said. "Therefore, I think that there may be some possibilities for 90 per cent of parity supports on these top-quality products only."

Plan Support Grows

The general idea of restoring 90 per cent supports on top-grade basic farm crops already has attracted backing from several leading Farm Belt senators, including Chairman Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Ellender described the proposal as a possible compromise between Benson's flexible program and the rigid high price guarantees in effect under previous Democratic administrations.

Sen. Milton Young (R-ND) said the Benson proposal "sounds feasible" and seems to match "exactly" the plan he hopes the Senate Agriculture Committee will present to Congress next year.

Sen. Karl Mundt (R-SD) said he considers Benson's proposal a constructive step "in keeping with recommendations the agriculture committee will make next year."

Supports Can Vary

Under the former program, originally drafted to spur wartime production of scarce foods and fibers, the government supported six basic crops at 90 per cent of the so-called "fair" parity price. Under present law, supports may range from 75 to 90 per cent.

The "basics" are wheat, corn, cotton, peanuts, rice and tobacco. Tobacco still is supported at 90 per cent under a special law.

An aide emphasized that Benson was not commenting directly on Ellender's proposal. He said the secretary merely was dealing with the general idea of a price support differential based on quality.

Kiwanians to Assist Salvation Army with Christmas Kettles Dec. 15

Kiwanians will man the Salvation Army kettles on the evening of Thursday, Dec. 15, it was announced at the meeting of the club last night at the Masonic temple.

The kettles will be manned by the Kiwanians from 5 until 8 p. m. on that date, with three volunteers at each of two kettles during those hours. The club voted to help the Salvation Army in its Christmas kettle campaign at the request of Lt. Andrew Sands, Salvation Army officer and member of the Kiwanis club.

Frank Thompson, 76, Bankston Resident, Dies

Frank P. Thompson, 76, resident of the Bankston community, died today at 7:15 a. m. at the Lightner hospital where he was taken ten days ago following a heart attack. He also suffered a stroke.

Mr. Thompson was a retired coal miner last working at Peabody 47 and was known to his friends as a great hunter and fisherman. He was born in Williamson county Oct. 10, 1879, and was married to the former Mary Stille. He and Mrs. Thompson celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in 1931.

For the past 30 years he made his home in Brushy township where in 1935 he served as road commissioner. He was a member of the Liberty Methodist church.

He leaves his wife, Mary, and ten children: Anna Allen, Fred Thompson, Iva Schwartz and Pansy Uzzle, all of Harrisburg, Noble Thompson, Canton, Ina Richey, Galatia, Ama Zoller, Ava Hogan and Verbal Harrison, all of Marion, and James Thompson, Harrisburg, who operates the Thompson and Allen D-X service station on Route 13. Also surviving are 19 grandchildren, 11 great-grandchildren and one brother, Arthur Thompson, Los Angeles, Calif.

Three sisters preceded him in death.

The body was returned by the Courtney funeral service in Galatia to the residence to lie in state, and funeral plans are incomplete.

Jet Explodes in Air, Crashes Into House; No Deaths

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A Navy Banshee jet plane exploded in the air and crashed today into an exclusive residential section, demolishing one fine residence and setting another ablaze.

Firemen and police who rushed to the scene were amazed to discover that there were no deaths and that the only injuries were a few minor burns to some of the six persons in the dwelling that was virtually leveled by the impact.

The pilot managed to eject himself from his plane and parachuted to safety, landing several miles from the scene of destruction in exclusive Windsor Farms.

Two women and four young children were in the home of businessman Benjamin Dennis when the jet slammed into the structure about 9:30 a. m. Somehow they managed to get out, almost without a scratch. An unidentified passenger helped get the children out. One of the women was an 18-year-old Negro maid.

Three of the persons in the house were taken to a hospital for observation.

The other residence, that of Thomas F. Walton, was not occupied. The fire in that house was brought under control within an hour, but firemen were treading carefully around the Dennis home in the belief that one of the fuel tanks from the jet still was imbedded in the ruins.

Craig Dims Hopes For Toll Free New Harmony Bridge

EVANSVILLE, Ind. — Indiana Gov. George Craig yesterday dimmed hopes for a toll-free New Harmony bridge across the Wabash with the announcement that maintenance costs of the span would be too much of a burden to put on the Indiana taxpayer.

Gov. Craig suggested to representatives of the Evansville Chamber of Commerce and a delegation from New Harmony that a group be appointed to seek a change in the present federal law concerning the bridge. The act, passed in 1941, created the White County Bridge commission, which has jurisdiction over the span.

The bonds have been paid off and the bridge was offered to Indiana and Illinois, to be operated toll-free by the two states. But they have turned it down, citing the maintenance costs. Under the law, if the states took it, it would have to be toll-free.

Need Reserves For Defense, Kiwanians Told

The United States should keep its armed forces and reserves at full strength because the nation may not have the time to arm itself following an attack such as struck Pearl Harbor.

This statement was made in an address to members of the Kiwanis club last night at the Masonic temple by Col. Jason Collins of Marion, commanding officer of the First Battalion 415th Infantry Regiment of the 102nd Reserve Division, and a professor at Southern Illinois university.

The program was the club's observance of the 14th Anniversary of the Pearl Harbor attack Dec. 7, 1941.

"It is well to pause and remember the Pearl Harbor attack," Col. Collins stated. "We were caught unprepared but we had plenty of time to get ready to wage war then," he said. "We may not have plenty of time in the future," he added.

He stated national defense was composed of three parts—regular armed forces, national guard and reserves.

The military has always depended on the reserves to expand the armed forces in times of emergency, he said.

The reserves have been authorized a strength of 2,900,000 men and under the new reserve act signed by President Eisenhower last August youths 17 to 18½ may enlist in the reserves for eight years and serve six months of active duty and devote the rest of the period in the reserves attending monthly meetings and summer training periods.

It gives security to young men, Col. Collins stated, in knowing they will have to serve only six months and devote the rest of the time in the reserves with no further obligation.

It is important to keep the reserves at full strength and training is needed in both technical weapons, Col. Collins stated.

The speaker was introduced by Glen Jones, program chairman for the evening.

President Dan Davis announced the club will hold its annual Christmas party ladies' night meeting next Tuesday.

Ronnie Doerge, president-elect, who will take office Dec. 27, announced that during January the club would be active in "Operation 49" to bring in new members. Following each meeting teams of club members will call on prospective members during that month, he said.

'Bromo' Johns Returned Home from Veterans Hospital

"Bromo" Johns, who was seriously injured in an auto mishap on April 16 of this year and who has been hospitalized since that time, was returned home Saturday night from the Veterans hospital in Memphis, Tenn., to spend the Christmas holidays. Also convalescing at their home on Route 13 west of Harrisburg is his mother, Mrs. Mabel Johns, who suffered a heart attack Nov. 24 in Vandalia, Ill., where she is recuperating at the Fayette County hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Johns and two children, Terre Haute, Ind., also arrived recently to spend the holidays in Harrisburg.

'Dry Run' by Fire Department

The fire department made a "dry run" yesterday afternoon. Receiving a call at 1:40 p. m. to go to 515 West Sloan street, the firemen raced to that address. There was no fire. Nobody in the neighborhood knew of any fire. Neither did anybody know of an alarm being turned in.

Suspend State Police Captain Until Next May

Engstrom Pleads Guilty to Charges Involving Conduct

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Capt. Henry W. Engstrom today pleaded guilty to charges involving his conduct in office and performance of duty and was suspended until next May by the State Police Merit Board.

Both the defense and prosecution agreed to a recommendation of 120 days suspension, in addition to the 30 day suspension ordered Nov. 4 when the charges were announced.

But the board handed down a sentence of 180 days suspension from Nov. 4, adding about 30 days to the recommendation. The entire hearing took less than 90 minutes.

The board said it was "not inclined to take the charges lightly." Board Chairman Henry A. Gardner specifically named the confessed "falsification of inspection reports" as a "very serious offense."

Cites Service Record

He said Engstrom's admission of abusive and profane language to subordinates, insubordination, failure to inspect and falsifying the reports could do "incalculable damage" to the state police force.

"If it were not for the service record of Captain Engstrom we would dismiss him," Gardner said.

Defense Attorney Norman P. Jones, Springfield, arose to state the charges would be accepted as "tried and proven" and asked to speak on "mitigating circumstances."

He first went over Engstrom's record as a member of the Evansville city police force from 1929 to 1930, and his appointment to the state police in May, 1930, and rapid rise to captain by Nov. 21, 1930.

Jones said Engstrom in 1932 won a $1,650 Auto Safety Foundation award and attended a traffic safety school on part of the money. Jones said the state police superintendent and three other command officers on March 20, 1935, still give Engstrom a high efficiency rating.

Praised by Board

He also pointed out that the Merit Board itself on Aug. 15 certified Engstrom as one of the "two or three" officers qualified as assistant superintendents.

Schwartz said Engstrom's superiors said Engstrom "can be a good police officer." But State Police Supt. Phil Brown, asked to comment on the penalty, indicated Engstrom would not have an active command post when reinstated.

"There are posts in this central command set-up where there is a

Find Body of Young Mother Missing Since 1953 Buried in Basement

CASPER, Wyo. (AP) — Authorities held an inquest today in an attempt to determine what caused the death of a young mother whose body was found imbedded in the concrete floor of her husband's basement, clutched a rude cross fashioned of lath.

The body of Mrs. Barbara Alexander, who was 27 when she disappeared in July, 1953, was freed from her concrete coffin Tuesday, after five hours of work with a pneumatic hammer.

James B. Alexander, 48, a former high school manual training teacher, watched part of the time while authorities tore up his basement floor. With him was Rose Alexander, the woman who was his wife before he divorced her and married Barbara, and whom he since has remarried.

Alexander, who for 28 months had insisted that Barbara had

Unveil Memorial For Dead at Pearl Harbor

HONOLULU (AP)—The first monument to all the Navy men who died during the Pearl Harbor attack will be dedicated today on the 14th anniversary of the sneak assault.

This ceremony and a 15-minute memorial observation conducted by Navy personnel aboard the sunken battleship, Arizona, in the placid waters of Pearl Harbor will be the only events to mark the day in 1941 which gave the United States its World War II battle cry of "Remember Pearl Harbor."

The Navy Club will unveil the memorial—a simple bronze plaque mounted on a two-ton lava rock on Ford Island within a stone's throw of "Battleship Row" where Japanese planes concentrated their heaviest attack and killed more than 2,000 Navy men.

The plaque weighs about 200 pounds and depicts a woman symbolizing peace holding a ship and a palmleaf above this inscription:

"In reverent recognition of divine guidance and to eternal memory of those who gave last full measure devotion to their country this monument is dedicated humbly to their sacrifice in defense of our freedoms."

The Navy Club bought the plaque with voluntary contributions from its members throughout the United States and territories.

Fear 25 to 28 Persons Dead At Frankfurt

Explosion Tumbles New Building While Occupants Asleep

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — A newly built apartment house collapsed in a nightmarish pre-dawn explosion early today. Police feared the blast killed 25 to 28 persons—most of them refugees from communism.

Fifteen bodies had been brought out of the wreckage eight hours after the blast and officials said there was little hope for those still trapped in the debris. Seven persons were hospitalized with injuries.

The explosion that sent the building tumbling down in splintered ruins came while the occupants were asleep.

A total of 32 persons lived in the house, most of them refugees who had only recently moved in from a settlement in nearby Idstein. Three overnight visitors also were reported in the building.

The explosion came at 5:35 a. m. (10:35 p. m. CST Tuesday). It lifted the building in the air, caused the walls to collapse and sent the roof and upper floors cascading to the bottom.

There was no fire. The collapse of the roof, walls and upper floors snuffed out whatever flames may have resulted from the explosion.

The house, completed three months ago, was inspected and approved by local housing authorities only Tuesday.

Police first suspected that an accumulation of cooking gas or a faulty oil burner might have caused the explosion. Later it was discovered the gas had not been connected yet. Neighbors said the house was heated by coal.

Some rescue workers said they suspected a buried bomb left over from World War II might finally have gone off to cause the disaster.

More than 300 German police and emergency workers were joined by 50 U. S. Army engineers in rescue efforts.

Mother is Sixth Victim of Fire Near Benton

BENTON, Ill. (AP) — A mother died of burns after five of her daughters perished in their blazing home near here.

Mrs. Ruby Wingo, 48, died in Franklin Hospital here late Tuesday.

Funeral services for all the dead were to be held today.

A sixth daughter, 14-year-old Agnes, was reported in fair condition at the hospital. She is expected to live, attendants said.

The bodies of the five girls, ranging from 7 to 15 years of age, were found in the ruins of a bedroom after the fire Tuesday.

Escaping the blaze were Mrs. Wingo's 78-year-old father, Charles Neunlist, and two sons, 13 and 11 years old. She was divorced.

A coroner's jury ruled that the six deaths resulted from fire of unknown origin.

However, authorities said it was possible that the fire started when Mrs. Wingo poured gasoline instead of kerosene into a stove.

They said that both liquids were kept in cans in the house, the gasoline for a washing machine motor and the kerosene for the stove.

San Francisco Wins Third Straight Game; Illinois Beats Butler, 107-75

By United Press

National champion San Francisco packed a 29 game winning streak into the trunk today and prepared to take it on a seven-game national tour likely to prove the December highlight of the college basketball season.

The Dons, rated again the No. 1 court team in the country, racked up their third win of this year Tuesday night without a trouble, 72-47, over San Francisco State in their final appearance before the tour.

San Francisco will put its dazzling streak on the line in the DePaul tournament in Chicago, starting Dec. 16, then swing southward to meet Wichita and Loyola of New Orleans and wind up with the Christmas week holiday festival tournament in New York's Madison Square Garden.

All-America Bill Russell, certain to draw big crowds on the tour, was again the key man for the Dons in Tuesday night's easy triumph. The six-11 sensation played only 22 1-2 minutes but sank 20 points and nabbed 17 rebounds.

Illinois, a favorite to cop the Big Ten basketball title, got off to a resounding start Tuesday night by ripping Butler, 107-75.

Paul Judson and Harvey Schmidt each chalked up 22 points in the Illini landslide, and sophomore guard Wally Cox had 19 for Butler. The Illinois average from the floor was 44.0, while Butler could achieve only 35.4.

Five other highly-ranked teams also won Tuesday night, but third-ranked North Carolina State had

Celtics Rout Hawks, 122-99

By United Press

The balance of power in the National Basketball Assn. seems to have switched this year from the West to the East.

All four teams in the Eastern Division are above .500 while only the St. Louis Hawks have won more games than they've lost in the West. What's more, the Eastern teams won three of four games played Tuesday night with their Western rivals.

The Philadelphia Warriors drubbed the once - powerful Minneapolis Lakers, 116-103, and the New York Knickerbockers snapped a four-game losing streak with a 116-105 verdict over the Rochester Royals in a doubleheader at Madison Square Garden.

At St. Louis, the Boston Celtics routed the Hawks, 122-99, after the Fort Wayne Pistons gave the West its only win of the night with a 90-88 win over the Syracuse Nationals.

Neil Johnston scored 32 points and Paul Arizin 26 to lead the Warriors to their 11th victory in 15 games while Harry Gallatin and Dick McGuire scored 23 points each in New York's triumph.

Illinois Wesleyan Edges SIU in 71-70 Thriller

CARBONDALE, Ill. — Illinois Wesleyan of Bloomington used southern Illinois players to beat Southern Illinois university in a 71-70 thriller here last night.

Glen Newton, senior center from West Frankfort, poured 27 points through the hoops to pace Wesleyan to the victory. Bob Quillman, Wesleyan guard from Pinckneyville, made only two points the entire game, but these came on free throws in the last 15 seconds of play to put Wesleyan ahead, 71-68. Newton had nine field goals and hit nine of ten field goal tries.

With only seven seconds left in the game, SIU forward Larry Whitlock, Mt. Vernon, connected with a jump shot to put SIU within a point, 71-70, but time ran out.

Robert Welch, Centralia, hit eight field goals for 16 points to tie with Richard Blythe of Hammond, Ind., for high point honors for the losers. Whitlock scored 14 and Joe Johnson, Mt. Vernon, had 12.

Hurting Southern was the loss of guard Seymour Bryson, Quincy, who sat out about half the game after getting four fouls during the first 15 minutes of play.

Wesleyan jumped into an early lead, but after five minutes Southern took control and was ahead, 37-32 at the half. The game was nip and tuck during most of the second half before Wesleyan edged ahead in the closing minutes.

Southern lost the game on free throws, outscoring the winners, 27-24, in field goals. Wesleyan, however, sank 23 of 29 free throw attempts for the margin of victory.

SIU defeated Wabash College, Ind., 67-60, in an overtime game in its first encounter. This Friday night, Dec. 9, Southern clashes with Millikin university at Decatur. Southern's next home game is against Ottawa, Kansas, at Carbondale Dec. 17.

Raleigh Baptist Revival to Close Friday Night

Revival services, which have been held since Nov. 28, will close Friday night at the Raleigh Baptist church, of which Rev. Todd Taylor is pastor.

Tonight will be ladies' night; Thursday will be family night and the closing service Friday night will be Sunday School at Church night.

Rev. Jimmy Merriman of Fort Worth, Texas, has been the evangelist and good crowds have been present at each of the services.

There have been 18 additions, 13 professions of faith and 49 dedications during the revival so far.

Last Sunday the church tried to meet the total Raleigh population of 250 at Sunday school and 255 were present. An attempt will be made again this Sunday to reach the population figure, Rev. Taylor said.

He stated a new record has been achieved also in the Training Union.

Two American Soldiers Arrested In East Berlin

BERLIN (U.P.) — The East German Radio said two American soldiers were arrested by Communist police today in East Berlin.

The broadcast, quoting East German police, said the soldiers were drunk and knocked out an East Berlin cabaret actor. But it came at a time of new tension in the divided city where the West fears a new Communist blockade of Berlin.

Announcement of the arrest came as West German Mayor Otto Suhr said a British agreement to let East German Communists issue permits for barge traffic to West Berlin would "shove the Allies to the sidelines."

The Communist report said the incident involving the two soldiers took place early today outside the Hajo Bar in East Berlin.

The soldiers tried to flee but were hindered by an East Berlin taxi driver and were arrested by Communist police, the radio said.

The British statement issued Tuesday recognized only the "administrative" rights of the East Zone Germans over barge traffic to Berlin. And it strongly reaffirmed that roads, railways and water routes to Berlin still were under four-power agreement.

place for him," Brown said. "I will have to study it." The central command headquarters is at Springfield under Brown.

Engstrom was the highest-ranking officer ever tried before the board in five years the merit system has been in effect. His defenders had charged the real reasons Brown sought to cashier Engstrom were the captain's raids on Spring Valley gambler Harry Cassidy and disagreement with Brown's anti-gambling policy.

Subject of Church Sermons The Engstrom case has been discussed from the pulpits of Bureau county churches and over the desk of Gov. William G. Stratton.

Some half-dozen Bureau county Protestant pastors made the case the subject of sermons. The leader of this church group, the Rev. Grafton Thomas, Spring Valley, linked Cassidy with Brown.

Thomas said Brown "told us Cassidy had visited him and spent quite some time in his office." Thomas said it would be a "terrible thing" if Engstrom were "dumped because he wouldn't play ball with the sources of patronage and machine representatives."

The ministers and about 10 other Bureau county citizens, including the editor of a weekly newspaper, circulated statements that Engstrom's trial would "make other police afraid to perform their duty for fear of political reprisal."

Rubber rings used to seal fruit jars are ideal for bottoms of ash trays, vases or other glass and pottery ware that might damage a high finish on furniture.

A coat of wax applied to leather and plastic purses will protect the finish. Apply to small sections at a time and rub with a clean, soft cloth.

Lone Bandit Robs Wisconsin Bank of $100,000

LAKE GENEVA, Wis. (AP)—A lone bandit, who bragged he had the keys to 12 banks, today robbed the First National Bank of Lake Geneva of an estimated $100,000.

The man, who wore a flesh-colored Halloween mask, was waiting inside the bank when the employees arrived for work. He herded all but one, Vice President George Allen, into a coin vault.

Then he forced Allen at gunpoint to put currency into a box and fled in a cashier's car after tapping up the vice president.

Allen said the man demanded the bank's list of serial numbers for the currency which the FBI requires banks to keep. He said the gunman volunteered the information that he had the keys to 12 banks.

"You probably wonder how I got in here," the bandit said. "I've got wax impressions to keys for 12 banks."

The robber showed a thorough knowledge of the bank's operation and of banks in general.

Police set up road blocks throughout southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois in an attempt to head off the bandit.

President Finds U. S. Economy In Good Shape

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—President Eisenhower examined the national economy today and found it in good shape.

The President spent almost two hours going over the latest economic indicators and prospects with his top economic advisers.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said afterwards that there would be no public report on the discussions, since they were preparatory to a formal report to Congress due in January.

But to a reporter's inquiry whether the talks showed the economy in good shape, Hagerty replied: "Yes, sure."

Mr. Eisenhower, working on a series of messages he will send to Congress in January, called in for today's talks Dr. Arthur F. Burns, chairman of his Council of Economic Advisers, and Gabriel Hauge, the presidential adviser on economic matters.

Tuesday the President discussed the military budget with Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

Attlee Quits as British Labor Party Leader

LONDON (AP)—Quiet little Clement Attlee, the giant-killer of British politics, announced his resignation today as leader of the British Labor party.

Attlee, who whipped Winston Churchill himself in the 1945 elections, followed Churchill into retirement by only eight months.

He had served 20 years as party leader, 6 of them as postwar prime minister. For 5 war years he was Churchill's understudy.

Attlee announced his retirement dryly and without drama at the opening of a meeting of Labor members of Parliament. Then, looking old and very sad, he sought the privacy of his own office in the House where he could conceal his feelings.

Attlee's resignation signaled the jump of a crucial three-way fight for his job as Labor party leader—a post that makes its holder prime minister when the Laborites win an election.

Hugh Gaitskell, the staunchly pro-American economist who is a leader of the party's right wing, was favored to win the party leadership in balloting expected within a week.

Will Be Offered Earldom
His chief opposition lay in Aneurin Bevan, the left wing firebrand and "American hater" and in right wing veteran Herbert Morrison. But Gaitskell was the heavy favorite.

The moderate Attlee did not want to step down until the rivalries for his succession had sorted themselves out. But he turns 73 on Jan. 3 and he suffered a mild stroke last summer.

The Socialists, under his leadership, went down to painful defeat under the onslaught of Sir Anthony Eden's Conservative party in the May 26 elections. So today the weary Attlee packed it up and left it to younger men.

By tradition, Attlee will be offered an earldom—an ironic reward for the plain, crumple-suited Socialist who used to joke that all he would ever be was the Cockney-styled "Lord love-a-duck of Limehouse."

Whether he would accept the offer of an earldom was not known. Churchill and William Gladstone declined. David Lloyd George and Stanley Baldwin did accept in recent instances.

Gunmen Take Mink Coat from Television Actress

NEW YORK (AP)—A gunman and a pal posing as a mailman forced their way into the apartment of negligee-clad television actress Kyle MacDonnell Tuesday and fled with her $5,000 mink coat after binding and gagging her with a sheet and pillowcase.

The beautiful blonde blamed the robbery on the publicity given to her mink coat when she wore it to testify at a wire-tap trial last week.

Miss MacDonnell said she was alone Tuesday morning in her apartment in the renovated old Manhattan brownstone house she owns. Her small son was out walking with his nurse, she said.

At about 11:30 a. m., she told police, her doorbell rang. When she asked who was there, a man's voice replied that it was a letter carrier with a registered letter for her.

The man wore a leather jacket, she said, and carried several letters in his hand. He held one of them out to her and said: "You'll have to sign for this."

Miss MacDonnell said that when she reached for the pencil, a second man appeared behind the first and pointed a gun at her.

"Now don't make a sound and you won't get hurt," he told her.

Cross country letter winners

Letter winners on the freshman-sophomore squad were Fred Bridwell, Bernard Goodley, Bob Holman, Carl Justice, Fred Poole, Gary Reasons, Bill Smith, Delbert Tosh, Leonard Willis, Richard Stevens, James Woods and Lester Fequay, sophomores, and Mike McMahon, Jack Fowler, Ronnie Hall, Tom Baugher, Larry Neal, "Chuck" McAllister, freshmen, and Gary Benefield, who was awarded a manager's letter.

Others introduced to the large group in attendance included Coach Charles Leonard, Tommy Thomas, president of the Lions club, Stanley Carter, Rotary club president, the cheer leaders, Homecoming Queen Linda Sontra and members of the court, members of the Board of Education and sports writer Bill Searles, Eldorado Journal, and Bill Melton. The Daily Register, who travelled throughout the season with the Eldorado gridgers.

W. A. Knoop, Eldorado high school principal, was master of ceremonies for the program. Rev. A. B. Clodfelter, pastor of the First Methodist church, gave the invocation and Rev. Austin Heuser, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, gave the benediction.

Cubs, Dodgers to Complete Second Half of Trade

CHICAGO — The Chicago Cubs and Brooklyn Dodgers aren't through trading yet. The second half of the deal which sent third baseman Ransom Jackson to the world champion Dodgers was expected to be concluded within the next week.

The Cubs, who got outfielder Walt Mory and third baseman Don Hoak for Jackson, hoped to come up with one of the Dodgers' front line pitchers in "chapter two" of their talks with Dodger Vice-President Buzi Bavasi.

Speculation centered around righthander Russ Meyer, who makes a habit of beating the Cubs. For Meyer, the Cubs will have to give up one of their pitchers. Player Personnel Director Wid Matthews of the Cubs would not say who the Cubs will give up for Meyer, but reports centered about John Andre and lefthanders Paul Minner and Jim Davis.

Matthews said the only reason the other part of the deal could not be completed at the major leagues' meeting here was that "Bavasi could not get hold of his man."

Matthews did not elaborate any further but it appeared Bavasi wanted to consult with Manager Walter Alton, the new pride of Brooklyn, before making the deal official.

"You can be sure of one thing," Matthews said. "There will be a second deal. That's a promise."

The Cubs' energetic personnel director, who took the spotlight away from his former cross-town trading genius, Frank Lane, with his deal with the Dodgers, said the second trade "will be a player for player trade."

Sources close to the Cubs said only pitchers were involved in the second half of the trade.

Plight of The Farmer

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT

Of the many things politicians have said about the farm problem, perhaps the most curious is that the bulging top surpluses in government hands are a side issue unrelated to the main difficulty.

Surpluses are the very heart of the matter and have been for more than three decades.

First in World War I and again in World War II, the American farmer was encouraged to produce far more than had previously been his custom. When wartime and early postwar demand was over, the farmer's excess output depressed the market.

In the 1920's this led to an agricultural depression that farmers never forgot. When this country was on the threshold of World War II, the farmer's friends in Congress acted to prevent a recurrence. They adopted the price support legislation which would bring government loans and purchases into the picture if the market sagged.

In the last few years that decline has occurred. Farm income has fallen despite price supports, and government warehouses have been filled to overflowing with crops taken off the farmer's hands.

All efforts to cut deeply into the surpluses seem to have failed because the farmer produces more and more from less and less acreage in his continuing battle to offset dropping market prices, acreage controls, and so on.

By now it ought to be plain the problem is chronic. The farmer has learned how to produce considerably more than the country absorbs in normal times. Neither government regulations nor market conditions effectively curb this extra output.

And neither government nor anybody else has found a way to insure that the farmer shall participate according to his numbers and his importance in the general economic gains the nation is steadily making.

The price support program is a crude, costly wartime makeshift that aggravates the problem rather than solves it. What we need is an entire new, inventive approach to the farmer's difficulty. It would be both heartening and refreshing if either one of our political parties could conceive such an approach.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON says: Len Hall Didn't Ask Ike If He Would Run Again; Tom Dewey's Hidden Hand Guides GOP Strategy; Hall Chiefly Talked Republican Finances At Gettysburg.

WASHINGTON. — There's more than meets the eye behind Leonard Hall's cheerful optimism that President Eisenhower will run again. The bald, bland Republican national chairman took his cue, not from Ike but from New York's Tom Dewey.

Here are the behind-the-scenes developments:

1. This column can report positively that Hall didn't even discuss a second term with Ike at Gettysburg. Hall had talked about it earlier, however with Dewey.

2. Assistant President Sherman Adams and Attorney General Herbert Brownell also consulted with Dewey about Ike's re-election. They agreed to come as close to declaring him in the race as they could without making the announcement for him. They convinced him, however, that he will have trouble pushing his legislative program through Congress unless he gave hints of remaining boss for another four years.

3. Hall did his level best to convince GOP national committeemen, meeting in Chicago last week, that Ike would be the party's candidate again in 1956. Significantly, this idea was given impetus behind closed doors by another Deweyite, Mrs. Charles Weiss of New York. In charge of arrangements for the Republican convention, she advised her subcommittee to plan on a short convention with only one nomination — Eisenhower's.

DEWEY'S SECRET HAND

4. Some committeemen didn't swallow the Ike-will-run propaganda, notably ex-National Chairman Guy Gabrielson and ex-Kansas Senator Harry Darby. They spread word that it was ridiculous to expect Ike to run again. Privately, some suspected the whole idea might be a holding action by the Dewey forces to stop a build-up for any other candidate. This would give Dewey more time to get his own machine rolling—if Ike should decide the last minute to retire.

It was pre-arranged with Adams, Brownell and Dewey what Hall should tell the press after his Gettysburg conference with the President. The plan was to suggest Ike would run again but to put off any formal announcement until March.

The subject of Ike's running, however, didn't even come up during his visit with the GOP chairman. Hall simply reported to the President on party finances. He told Ike that his heart attack had simulated Republican contributions.

GOP FINANCES BETTER

Before his illness the National committee had collected only 50 per cent of its $2,180,410 quota. Collections shot up to 88 per cent, Hall told Ike, after the shocking news of his heart attack. Hall also reported the committee expects to raise another $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 from a series of "salute to Eisenhower" $100-a-box luncheons on Jan. 20.

Aside from the financial discussion, Ike and Len went the rest of their time reminiscing about the 1952 campaign. Not a word was said about the President's political plans or the timing of his announcement.

Earlier, Sherman Adams had gotten an optimistic report on the President's health from his doctors.

Adams reported the results to Dewey, in effect, as follows: "By February, Ike will be out shooting 18 holes of golf. The worst thing a heart patient can do is sit around and think about his heart. Mental activity is good for the heart. It stimulates the heart and gives it exercise."

During subsequent talks, Dewey, Brownell, Adams, and Hall agreed the President was so bored during his hospital recuperation that he saw what it would be like to retire and have nothing to do. They also suggested that Ike would get so sore over political bickering and Democratic attacks by February that he might decide to announce for a second term.

EISENHOWER NOT CONSULTED

It should be stressed that Ike personally never encouraged them to expect him to run again. They agreed among themselves, however, that Ike would be the best candidate if he could be persuaded to run.

They also agreed to hold off Ike's announcement as long as possible, presumably to give him more time to regain his health and make up his mind. This would have the added advantage of keeping other candidates quiet and stopping the publicity build-up for Vice President Nixon, Senate GOP Leader Knowland, and other hopefuls.

Some National committeemen at the Chicago Republican rally suspected this is what Dewey had in mind. As far as this column could learn, however, the idea of a holding action for Dewey wasn't mentioned out loud in Dewey's private talks with Adams, Brownell, and Hall.

Meanwhile, Dewey is passing the word to his political henchmen to get behind Ike's renomination. For example, Maryland's Governor Theodore McKeldin, the man who nominated Ike in 1952, talked to Dewey the other day.

"Who's going to be our man?" McKeldin asked.

"Eisenhower," Dewey replied firmly. Then he proceeded to line up McKeldin for Eisenhower in 1956.

CHICAGO GO-ROUND

Speeches by GOP leaders at the Chicago Republican rally will be echoes by lesser politicians throughout the coming campaign. GOP National committeemen were instructed to take the speeches home and use them as basic campaign material. Secretary of Agriculture Benson took time out from the GOP meeting to visit Chicago's International Livestock Exposition. He whacked one fat hog approvingly on the rump, and was told by the owner that the hog brought $20 a hundred pounds at auction. "I wish all of them would sell that high," replied Benson wistfully. The hotel door of one Republican staff worker snorted the sign: "Please don't disturb. Democrats sleeping."

Her Yule Gift: Perfume

Perfume takes precedence as a 1955 Christmas gift. It can be a gift that's lavish or modest but either way, it's always welcome. Lucky girl (left) uses a sophisticated American perfume packaged in blue-and-gold, its scent matched by dusting powder, soap, cologne, hand and body lotion, cream and powder sachet. Imported French perfume (upper center) comes in beautiful crystal bottle that's set into silk-covered box. Budget-priced cologne (upper right) in fresh flower scent comes in collector's hobnail bottle of genuine milk glass. Cologne and perfume (lower center) are in same scent, one for dressing table, one for handbag. Perfume measures out just so much spray at one puff. Dusting powder and toilet water (lower right) make another duo.

By DANIEL-ROPS

Beginning next Sunday, December 11, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch will present the new best-selling life of the Savior, JESUS AND HIS TIMES, by the noted French author, Daniel-Rops.

Here in 12 dramatic installments is the reverent and inspiring story of Jesus and the world He was born into... the world as He saw it with His own eyes.

In vivid detail, the author recreates the turbulent political forces of the times, the unusual forgotten customs to give us a fresh background to the story of Christ. The cities where He lived, the people who were His friends... all this and more is made real and lifelike.

This moving story will be illustrated with adaptations from famous art masterpieces. Enjoy all 12 inspiring installments. Order the St. Louis Post-Dispatch home delivered.

Praised by Leaders of Many Faiths

"JESUS AND HIS TIMES by Daniel-Rops is a most helpful, indeed an inspiring book. I found this a worthwhile book, and believe that it will prove interesting and helpful to many."

The Rt. Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Presiding Bishop
Protestant Episcopal Church

"It is both scholarly and fascinatingly written. It takes more of genius to select a theme like that of this book and bring out something which is both refreshing and stimulating. That the author has done. I think of it as a very great book."

Rev. Lee Holt
Bishop of the Missouri Area of the Methodist Church

"Oursler's recent works... the many devotional and dogmatic studies of Christ's life in English, cannot approach the general and popular audience which JESUS AND HIS TIMES will inform."

THE STORY: Capt. Jered Naish, master of the merchantman Mercury, has returned to his sweet heart, Phoebe Proctor, in Salem. They are to be married soon. Captain Naish and his father are having dinner with Phoebe's parents. Her father, Capt. Sam Proctor, and Jered's father are ship-owner partners.

II

Capt. Jered Naish went to bow over Mrs. Proctor's hand and wish her good evening and then to greet the children. The latter were shy with him, he sensed, and in particular the half-grown girls, Diane, Hepzibah and Carol. They somehow envied Phoebe, while the boys, since he had the rank of captain, had automatically put him among all other ship masters, to be considered stern and remote and treated with awe.

Mrs. Proctor was a Morgan from Beverly, and in her day said to be quite a beauty. But she had suffered severely from malaria, the same disease that had killed his mother some years ago, and her arms, her throat and face were gaunt, her skin tight, the eye sockets almost cavernous. She refused a glass of Madeira when Phoebe offered it to her and spoke with impatience of the fact that supper was late because of the absence of his father and her husband.

"But here they are, dear," Phoebe said. The two men went in the front doorway.

"May we go to the table?" Mrs. Proctor said at once.

"After we've had a quick grog," Captain Proctor said.

"It's been a long day, and Phillip and me stand in need of it. How are you, Jered? I see that your lass has already tended to you."

"I'm well, sir," he said, and grinned. But he was forced to notice how tired, how wan and old his father looked. He stepped to his side and took his arm.

"You're all right, Father?"

"A bit whipped out," Phillip Naish said. "But some of Sam's rum will do the trick for me. You have the best of the bargain when you're away at sea. It's the counting-house business that wears a feller to the bone."

"Gentlemen, please," Mrs. Proctor said in her high voice. "The children are half-starved. If you'd like, bring your quantums to the table."

The main dish at supper was boiled chicken stuffed with bay scallops, and Jered was forced to reflect after his stay of some months in France that Salem cooking would remain forever unchanged if not drab.

The Negro servants, both slaves who had served the Proctors from childhood, moved with skillful ease around the long table. They understood fully the degrees of his taste and those of everybody there. But at sea he had developed the habit of solitude, and a meal for him was simply time taken from the hours on deck before he released his mates.

His father and Phoebe's had undergone the same experience in their time. They could if they wished through their mutual concerns with him draw him forth, see to it that in some part he joined in what they said. They had been too long ashore, though; the land years had dulled or maybe eased the recollection of how strongly the loneliness of command had once affected them.

He listened to their conversation. General cargo trade as such was badly off, Captain Proctor repeated, what with the Englishmen so solid in the China tea trade and the price of their cotton goods so low. They had been lucky to get rid of the Mercury cargo of brandy, crockery, silk goods and pepper for the going prices. Next month, due to the great number of ships that would be idle, freight rates, thus profits, could do no more than tumble again.

Jered scratched his chin reflectively. These men spoke about his ship as though he weren't in the room. Once a Yankee trader, he thought, always a Yankee trader, and dollars came first, blood relationships and those between friends afterwards.

That, however, wasn't quite true, or fair. Years ago, when Captain Proctor had been master of the brigantine Sylph and his father first mate of the vessel she had piled up in a snow gale on Fisher's Island homeward bound from Demerara. Most of the crew had died in the surf when the long-boat had capsized. Captain Proctor, knocked unconscious by the steering oar, had been saved by his father who had then given his outside clothing to protect the other man and walked miles to a hut of refuge to get blankets, food and fuel.

"New Bedford now," Captain Proctor's voice boomed so that the candelabra pendants musically clinked, "she has the right idea. The New Bedford fellas got the harbor, got the deep-draft ships and the capital to sail 'em. Nantucket, with that shallow bar of theirs, can't operate as it should."

"Big money in oil," Phillip Naish's face was alight. "Sperm at better than a dollar a gallon, whalebone itself going at 75 cents a pound."

There was perhaps, Jered thought suddenly, something after all that concerned him in this conversation. The partners had given particular emphasis to the whaling trade, and the figures his father quoted were well known to anybody along the seaboard.

"How about it, Jered?" Captain Proctor said. "Join me and the cap'n in a noggin of the French spirit. We're excused, I hope, ma'am."

"You are, sir," Mrs. Proctor said. "But don't hold Jered in the library. Phoebe has things to discuss with him about the wedding."

Captain Proctor stood before the screened, empty fireplace in the library with his coat tails lifted out of habit. He had filled and refilled the glasses with the Napoleon brandy, and fine sweat beads were on the pouches under his eyes, his eyes shone. "No sense delaying," he said. "Here's the point of what your father and me want to tell you, Jered. We have a ship for you to sail. Right now, right tonight, in fact."

"Which one?" Jered said, not completely surprised.

"The Obis," his father said.

"She's that old New Bedford bark that was once a privateer," Jered said. "What's wrong with the Mercury? And why such a hurry to send me back to sea?"

Captain Proctor gave his short laugh. "Solid questions," he said. "We've bought the Obis and converted her for the whaling trade. Cap'n John Whiting of Nahant went master of her, but just today when she was clearing Boston he took sick. Doctor says it's something severe with his innards. She's at anchor in President Roads while she waits a new master."

"I'm no whaler man," Jered said with anger. "Neither have I any liking for the trade."

"Jered, the money's no longer in the merchant vessels," his father said. "Whaling's where it lies."

"So I've heard tell," Jered said. He was more on the defensive than he liked, and also increasingly angry, confused. He could get up and leave the room now, tell them that it was ridiculous for him under the circumstances to take any ship to sea. Still, he was held by the double bonds of love and loyalty. Their control of his decision was pretty near entire.

"I've heard tell, too," he said, "that down to New York they're experimenting with a new type of clipper in the form of a full-rigged vessel. It'd make sense if you'd offer me one of her type. A whaler's not to my knowledge. Might as well offer me one of those crank-up, side-wheel steamers the man was trying to sell here. Aren't there a plenty of other masters to sail the Obis?"

"Not that we can find in the moment or particularly trust," Captain Proctor said. "The clippers are still in the future, Jered. And as for the steamers, they're a joke. Time you're in again we'll talk clipper. Don't go worrying at all about what you lack of whaling. Eleazar Cupp is to be your first mate."

Jered Naish hit his hands against his knees with force. "How long a voyage?" he said.

"Two years, maybe a mite more," his father murmured. "The best grounds left are in the South Pacific."

"Have you spoken to your wife of this yet, sir?" He had turned to stand squarely in front of Proctor.

"Not as yet, son," Captain Proctor put his broad hands on Jered's shoulders. His glance was affectionate, warm. "We reckoned that it was for you to bring to Phoebe alone. She's a sailor's daughter. Put her the case straight, without palaver from her mother."

"I'm your man," Jered said, a constriction in his throat.

"Lad, I must say this," his father slowly said. "You're young still, and haven't figured out full just how absence from home is part of a sailor's life. For certain, you can't tell it to Phoebe. And you can say to her, could we find another fitting master to take your place, the Obis would sail without you."

"What's wrong with Eleazar Cupp?" Jered said from the last of his desire for defense. "He's Salem born and bred and a master in his own right."

"When you come to ship with him," Captain Proctor said hard-voiced, "you'll find that Eleazar's not the feller you remember. He had considerable trouble in the Arctic on his last voyage."

Phoebe was alone in the front parlor, a piece of embroidery on her lap. But from the head of the stairs Jered heard a faint creaking and was aware that her mother waited and listened. He took Phoebe's arm without word and led her into the garden. He kissed her before he could bring himself to speak.

"I must go to sea tonight," he said.

"In that whaler, the Obis," she said. "I guessed as much. The venture means an enormous amount to them. The company affairs haven't been going at all well in the regular fashion. How long will we be apart?"

He shook her from side to side in a torment of longing. "Two years, and it might be more. Phoebe, say the word and I'll refuse them. They can find some other man than me."

"No," she said. "They need you, and they trust you. And with you as master, she'll come home with what will amount to a fortune. Go ahead, Jered. Don't let's forget who we are. I mean, our ties to them."

"Two years," he said hoarsely, "after four days at home. You should have fallen for some Lynn shoe merchant."

For the Family: Household Purchases Give Opportunity for Better Living

Family gifts, presents from the entire family to the entire family, are increasing in number every year.

With elevator operators, newsboys, cats and dogs receiving gifts, many families have decided to present gifts to the different rooms in their homes.

A living room, for example, might be made quite happy when given a brand-new television set this Christmas. So will the viewers.

With a greater number of people contributing, today's bigger and better television sets may be bought comparatively simply. New developments in television sets make them very desirable this Christmas.

Zenith, for example, has produced one set complete with pistol. Aimed at the right spot, the small gun enables home owners to silence commercials and turn the set off and on without leaving the chair.

Other "collective" gifts for the living room are radio-phonograph combinations. Even the relatively modern science of high fidelity recording is included in this year's fine blond and mahogany console cabinets.

Other furniture should also be considered. The new Contempro cocktail table features a top of slate-black Panelyte resistant to stains, scratches, heat and moisture. The wood is finest walnut with "distressed" finish.

Always popular with the adult members of the family, new cocktail tables also contain drawers which are highlighted by countersunk, pewter-finished pulls.

The dining room might need new china or silverware — both fine family presents. International Sterling's new "Silver Melody" comes in a beautiful mahogany case with extra drawer this Christmas.

The bathroom always is happiest with new towels. The Cannon towel set comes in a gold-decorated "jewel box." It contains two towels, two face towels and two wash cloths.

If the weatherman fails to come through with the fluffy white stuff, your family can still have a White Christmas — in the kitchen. White porcelain and enamel appliances always make fine kitchen presents.

These, too, should be family gifts, because the entire family receives benefits from them. The following list is sure to contain some item that both your kitchen and wife deserves:

Toaster, mixer, coffee maker, broiler, hotplate, blender, juicer, deep-fat fryer, egg cooker, iron, clock, bottle warmer, corn popper, ice cream freezer, coffee grinder, roaster oven, waffle iron, knife sharpener, sandwich grill, sun lamp, vaporizer, infrared rotisserie broiler.

Still no ideas? Stop in at your nearest appliance dealer. He'll be able to suggest countless others.

Some gifts will fit in any room. There is, for example, an attractive rural mailbox by Verplex which is used for citified note-dropping. The signal flag operates on exactly the same principle as an actual mail box. It is also done in fabric for home interiors.

The new Travler radio-clock combination will also find a use in many rooms of the house. This radio tells time, day and date. It comes in mahogany or blond colored plastic.

Another gift that may be used in several rooms is a small coaster for drinks. Rubbermade puts out a package of colored coasters ideal for grab-bag presents or gifts to the family.

If the house has a den or private study, it could certainly use a leather desk. The set gen-

Now Coloring Books Are On the Pan

BUFFALO, N. Y. — Two art professors have tossed children's coloring books into the "mustn't touch" pile formerly reserved for horror comic books.

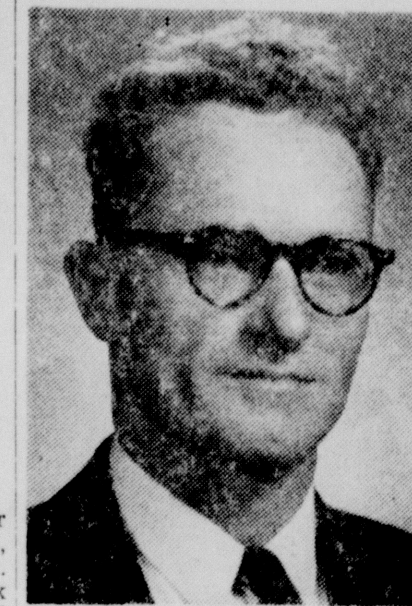

George K. Stark and Harlan E. Hoffa of Buffalo State Teacher's College were firm in their denunciation of coloring books as a means of amusing a child.

"Coloring books are completely devoid of any relationship to the child's basic experiences," they warned.

"They dictate subjects, matter, style, adult standards and taste, leaving no room for the child to make decision or expand his horizons and capabilities in his own personal fashion."

Peithman to Study Indian Lore in Florida

Irvin Peithman

CARBONDALE, Ill. — It will be an Indian and alligator Christmas this year for Irvin Peithman of Southern Illinois university.

Peithman, known for his knowledge of southern Illinois archaeology and Indian lore, will spend the holidays in the Florida Everglades studying plant and animal life and Seminole Indian culture.

Planning to leave for Florida Dec. 17, Peithman will do much of his swamp traveling by canoe and on foot. From material and photographs he obtains, he will prepare a paper to be presented to the archaeological section of the Illinois State Academy of Science meeting next May. Another paper will be published next year in the Central States Archaeological Journal.

Peithman also will prepare color slides for travelogue presentations in area schools and to camping groups at Little Grassy Lake during 1956-57. His color photographs of Everglades wildlife will be used by the SIU zoology department, which is providing film. Grants for the project are being supplied in part by the Illinois State Academy of Science, Southern's Graduate Council, and the SIU Department of Recreation and Outdoor Education. Peithman plans to return to Carbondale about Jan. 7.

Peithman is second vice-president of the Illinois State Archaeological society and a member of archaeological and historical societies in Illinois and Missouri. He is the author of "Echoes of the Red Man," an archaeological and cultural survey of the Indians of Southern Illinois.

Cupid, Divorce Court Fought to Fairly Even Draw in Hollywood in '55

By ALINE MOSBY

United Press Hollywood Writer

HOLLYWOOD (U.P.)—The year's vital statistics for 1955 in Hollywood are drawing to a close, and this time cupid and the divorce court fought to a fairly even draw.

Not one big lavish wedding kept the caterers and autograph hounds busy in the Cinema City during the past 11 months. But a few quiet weddings and unscheduled elopements kept romance from being a total off-screen flop.

One of the year's biggest marriage stories came when Clark Gable and Kay Spleekels eloped in July. Last month they lost their expected baby. The baby-sitters had to find another young bachelor idol after Rock Hudson wed the pretty secretary of his agent, Phyllis Gates.

Saw Her Lawyers

After an on-off engagement that had moviegoers either yawning or anxious, Debbie Reynolds and Eddie Fisher finally became man and wife at a subdued ceremony at a New York resort. And Yvonne De Carlo, one of Hollywood's last bachelor girl holdouts, finally said "I do" with stunt man Robert Morgan. Jane Withers, Lucy Marlow, Colleen Miller, Sherree North, Jarma Lewis and Nancy Kelly were other 1955 brides.

Betty Hutton wed record executive Alan Livingston shortly after she marched from a divorce court with a decree from dance director Charlie O'Curran. But other marriages were splitting just as fast in tinsel town.

Jack "Dragnet" Webb put down his badge to wed Dorothy Towne in January. But last month she saw her lawyers about a separation. Rita Hayworth hit headlines again when she walked out on husband No. 4, crooner Dick Haymes.

Record Number of Deaths

Linda Christian ended her marriage to Tyrone Power and took home a million dollar settlement from the judge. Mrs. Victor Mature cornered half that amount when she was untied from the brawny actor. Mrs. Sterling Hayden and Mary Astor won divorces.

Both Edward G. Robinsons—Jr. and Sr.—saw their marriages falter, with the son's being dissolved in divorce. Separations were also admitted by Gloria Grahame and Cy Howard, the Dean Martins, Vivian Blaine, Jean Peters and Aldo Ray and Jeff Donnell.

But the biggest news in Hollywood's 1955 was the saddest—a record number of deaths among young members of the film colony. James Dean, a 24-year-old new star, was killed in the crash of his sports car. Heart attacks claimed John Hodiak and Carmen Miranda. Robert Francis, headed for stardom after "The Caine Mutiny," lost his life in the crash of a small airplane. The world was saddened when beautiful Suzan Ball died of cancer.

On the brighter side of the news, babies arrived this year for Pier Angeli, Jan Sterling, Judy Garland, Eva Marie Saint, Mrs. Robert Taylor, Jeanne Marie, the Kirk Douglasses and the Guy Madisons.

Four Safety Rules For School Children

BOSTON (U.P.)—The Institute For Safer Living has issued safety rules for the nation's school children, nearly 2,000 of whom are killed yearly going to or from their classes.

1. Work out and use the safest route to and from school with your child.
2. Teach him to walk on the extreme left edge of the road, always facing traffic, if there is no walk.
3. Impress your children with the need for obeying traffic officers, school crossing guards, school safety patrols or mechanical signs and signals.
4. Neighborhood mothers should take turns supervising school children at the bus stop and insure safe boarding of the bus.

Electronic Range Cool, Man, Cool

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Bake a cake in a cold oven in six minutes. Broil bacon on a paper plate in seconds. Heat coffee directly in the cup.

These are some of the feats promised from an electronic stove available for the home for the first time.

The range, which looks like an oven, is called by its manufacturer, Tappan of Mansfield, O., "the most revolutionary development in home cooking since the introduction of electricity."

Demonstrated in New York recently, the stove baked a potato in five minutes, broiled the bacon on a paper plate in two minutes, and turned out a five-pound beef roast in 30 minutes.

And the stove never got hot to the touch!

The manufacturer explained that the range cooks by microwaves, the same type of energy which transmits the ultra-high frequency signal on a television set.

Cool Sauce
Since heat is generated in food itself, temperature controls on the range are eliminated, the range and the utensils in it do not get hot, and once the housewife sets a timer dial, the food automatically selects its own cooking or baking temperature.

The range can be installed as a built-in unit or stacked on cabinets as modular unit. A coil element in the top of the oven browns the top of meats, casseroles or breads.

The manufacturer installed test ranges in kitchens of several Mansfield homemakers for a year before the stove came to market. One of the homemakers was Mrs. David Rainey, mother of three school-age children, who amazed her neighbors by the way she served coffee at morning gab fests.

She poured coffee into a cup, set cup and saucer in the oven to heat and pulled them from the oven without a pot-holder. The coffee was hot, the saucer cool.

"It took me a long time to convince my guests the cup was safe to the touch," she said.

Detroit, founded in 1701, is the oldest city in the Midwest.

Warren Opposes Quitting Desirable Job, Assured Pay to Run for President

By LYLE C. WILSON
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 WASHINGTON — To put it perhaps too bluntly, why would a man quit a job with an assured annual income of $46,345.84 and the privilege of retiring on full pay in a few years?
 And if this fortunate person's present job was rated by many of his colleagues as the most desirable in the whole world, wouldn't that be another reason why he might want to keep it?
 And if this individual already had announced publicly that he would not change jobs for anything on earth, would not the whole circumstances of the case suggest that he would keep it, come what may?
 The man, of course, is the chief justice of the United States, Earl Warren. These ponderings are prompted by the current report in a well-edited national magazine that Mr. Warren can be had. News-flated the boom all over again, and Mr. Warren has been trying to puncture it by authorizing friends to utter his denials.

 There is much more, of course, than money involved in any decision Mr. Warren might make. Money might not influence him at all, in fact. But it is true that the young man who began his political career back there in 1919 as clerk to a California legislative committee is coming only now to know what it means to be secure and financially independent.
 Mr. Warren drew $25,000 a year and fringe benefits during his 10 years as governor of California just prior to joining the court. But he had three daughters and any father of daughters can figure that out.
 He draws $35,000 a year as chief justice plus California pension which totals up to $11,545.84 a year. The United States tosses in a limousine and chauffeur, and there's $5,000 for life for Mrs. Warren if the chief justice dies in office. After 10 years on the bench — that would be in 1963 — Mr. Warren could retire at full pay.
 All of that is a lot to give up for a return to politics, especially when many a lawyer can and does truthfully say that most members of the legal profession would rather be chief justice than president. Moreover, there is the question whether it is ethical for a political party to borrow a candidate from the high court. Charles Evans Hughes left the court for the 1916 Republican presidential nomination and later was returned to the high bench with promotion to chief justice by President Hoover.
 So there would be precedent for Mr. Warren, but not necessarily good precedent.
 All of these factors shrink in importance, however, beside the point which Mr. Warren makes to clinch his statement that he will not be a substitute for Mr. Eisenhower. It is that he knows the dispute about segregation — desegregation would instantly become a terribly personal issue if he were to return to politics.
 It does seem as if now that Mr. Warren means it when he says he will not run. But, of course, men have changed their minds. Mr. Warren is 64 years old.
 Rice won't stick to the pan, if a small amount of lard or other fat has been added to the cooking water.

Four Topflight Soloists Featured in 'The Messiah' At SIU Sunday

CARBONDALE, Ill. — Four nationally topflight soloists will be featured with the Southern Illinois chorus at its 10th annual performance of "The Messiah" Sunday, Dec. 11.
 Soprano Dorothy Linden Krieg, Chicago; contralto Myrtle Oechsle, of St. Louis; tenor Ralph Nielsen, Chicago; and baritone Carl Nelson, of Muncie, Ind., will sing the aria portions of Handel's famed Christmas oratorio, scheduled for 7:30 p. m. in Shryock Auditorium.
 Dr. Maurits Kesar of the Southern Illinois University Music department, who will be directing the 150-voice chorus for the 10th straight year, calls the group "one of the best in the history of our performances." Nielsen sang in the first "Messiah" here in 1946, and Miss Krieg has also appeared previously.
 Nielsen, called by Kesar one of the country's finest oratorio singers, is now a member of the American Conservatory of Music faculty, where he began serious study in 1948. He has made 14 symphony appearances since then, and was soloist at the 1954 World Council of Churches' "Festival of Faith" at Soldier's Field in Chicago. He is also musical director-producer of the "Temple Time" broadcasts.
 Mrs. Oeschle has been one of St. Louis' leading soloists since 1936. She is currently completing her 10th year as soloist at Shaare Emeth Hebrew Temple. A veteran of many "Messiah" performances, singing the contralto role, she has made many radio and television appearances.
 Nelson, a member of the Music department staff at Ball State Teachers College, Indiana, has sung roles from the "Messiah" and "St. Matthew's Passion" throughout the Midwest with several of the country's topnotch choral clubs.
 Miss Krieg, a member of over a dozen midwestern and national choral societies, including Chicago's Swedish Choral club, is another polished performer on the demanding obstacle-course of Handel aria singing.
 The chorus, as in the past, is composed of volunteer choral singers and "Messiah" lovers from homes and church choirs throughout southern Illinois. Many of them have been on hand for all of the nine previous performances, and all of them have been attending rehearsals for the past two months.
 Ronald Mitchell, a Litchfield junior, will play the trumpet solo parts of the oratorio.
 The Christmas portions of "The Messiah" will be sung in a special student assembly Dec. 12 at 10 p. m., Kesar said. Miss Krieg and Nielsen will sing solo parts in the performance.
 Biblical Apocalypse
 Apocalypse, a Greek word meaning "revealing," frequently is given to the last Book of the New Testament (the Book of Revelation), believed to have been written by John.

Diaper 'Flag' Announces Birth of Granddaughter

SOUTH PORTLAND, Me. — Neighbors kept asking Mr. and Mrs. Harold Etter day after day if they had become grandparents.
 When their daughter, Mrs. Barbara Romano, finally gave birth to a seven-pound, 12-ounce girl, Etter found a way to make the announcement to the neighborhood in a hurry. He ran up a diaper with pink ribbons fluttering from it on the flagpole in the front yard.
